

I find it unbelievable that any group would oppose having XM Radio broadcasting traffic and weather information at ANY level. I travel often and have had a number of situations where getting advance information on traffic and weather available as I drove allowed me to avoid developing situations. I would not have been in range of local sources for that information. The local broadcast media would not have lost me as a listener so why should they care that another media outlet was getting me helpful information. Do we lose internet weather services next? This is just stupid. XM any other outlet should be able to supply traffic or weather information as they see fit without having to answer to any other media group.

Information flow is what makes the difference for me and many other listeners I strongly urge you to allow XM and other nontraditional broadcast media to assist listeners with up to date weather and traffic information.
